Content Ideas on VR with David Sasser Introduction From the beginning, Virtual Reality was always about the content. A certain level of visual and auditory immersion is required to create a compelling VR experience and VR games that fail to provide these components may not be compelling to the player. However, this is where we have been and where we are. The only big change we have seen in the past three years has been the growth in the number of games and experiences in the VR world, from the 0.5 games per week that were released in
