1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a device for manufacturing a semiconductor element. More particularly, it relates to a device for processing a semiconductor substrate using a plasma in a manufacturing step of a semiconductor element.

2. Description of the Related Art In recent years, the use of a plasma CVD method for forming a film on a semiconductor substrate such as a silicon substrate has been increasing for various kinds of semiconductor elements. In particular, a high-density plasma method has been proposed in which a high voltage is applied to a substrate using a conductive material, and thereby, a substrate processing is performed in a plasma state. A substrate processing device using the high-density plasma method is disclosed, for example, in U.S. Pat. No. 5,904,545. In the device, a conductive surface of a semiconductor substrate is exposed to the plasma formed by a plasma excitation source, and a film is formed on the exposed conductive surface of the semiconductor substrate, thereby processing the semiconductor substrate. Furthermore, in order to improve the processing efficiency, the performance of the device is enhanced by applying a low voltage of several to a few tens of volts to the semiconductor substrate. In the substrate processing device described above, a film is formed by using a conductive film as an electrode. To form a conductive film, a

Dota 2 is a multiplayer online battle arena video game developed by

Valve Corporation and published by Valve. It was released on May 23, 2013. The game is based on the five elements of the Dota universe, and the combat system is relatively similar to the one used in its predecessor, Dota 2: The International. It features a developed character progression system, five playable lanes, heroes from the MOBA genre, RPG game elements, and a class-based structure. As of September 2017, the game has over 24 million players. Gameplay A match consists of two teams of five players who fight to destroy the opposing's base. The first team to destroy five enemy towers (one from each of the five lanes) or a base is the winner. Players earn experience and gold from the matches they play. Only heroes from the opposing team are available for purchase, and the player has to use bought items to increase their capabilities. Items are purchased with a currency provided by killing enemy heroes, destroying enemy items or opposing players' structures and harvesting two kinds of resources. Items can also be found by playing the game or by randomly receiving new items. Heroes can be acquired from the six different "camps" found throughout the world. Camps are randomly selected at the start of a match and contain heroes that are very similar to the ones in Dota 2. Heroes are given to the player every time they reach a certain level, and players unlock additional heroes by spending their gold. Unlike in Dota 2, players cannot reach a very high level by playing the game. The game is in the same universe as the MOBA genre but it is different in the way that the characters are controlled. In Dota, a person has one main hero who is usually chosen at the start of the game, while the main goal of Dota 2 is to play the game with five heroes. Dota 2 also features a leveling system, which is similar to the one
