wenhelk 7b17bfd26b fajiane - February 15, 2022 1 I do not know how deeply you will penetrate the essence of my desire, but I hope that I may find peace of mind. I ask you to answer me, and I will accept any answer, whatever it may be. And please remember to answer when the question is asked, because I do not want my letter to go unanswered. I guess you could call me a "perpetual virgin," both in a bad way and in a good way. I am afraid of sex. I'm afraid that something unpleasant might happen. It has to do with my fears. I'm very afraid of death. And those fears keep me from building a life, from working. Strangely enough, they make me afraid of even what could be the most beautiful and happy things. Or maybe it's the fact that my life has already passed, but I still haven't noticed it. And now everything is like a fog to me. And the fog is dissipating. And suddenly I saw my life. With pain and fear. With longing for the past. With guilt and shame. With self-loathing. With hatred and fear. With guilt. Self-pity. With the desire to give up and tell everyone to go to hell. With depression and a complete unwillingness to do anything, much less fight anything. In my opinion, these are all signs of the same phenomenon - depression. Depression is a very deep sense of guilt. A feeling that you're kind of bad, and like you're not doing anything. It's like you're punishing yourself. Depression is when life seems unbearable. And you want to give up everything and tell everyone to hell. But not even for your own sake, but for the sake of the people who are near you and who need you. And you go because you know that you need to finish all these works and hand them in, you can't let people down. And you write on your knees, you stay up at night, you take painkillers and you go. You don't believe in anyone or anything, but you go. And when you pass, you realize that that's it. You did it, you did it. And everyone in the end will be glad. And everyone will praise you. And you look at them and think: and it's all just me so exalted? And you say: enough, I've said it all before. And they say, "Try it, and you'll say it too. Don't, I say, don't, don't teach me, or I'll forget how bad it is. And on the next page, it's them again. And on the next page, it's the same again. And even on the tenth page, it's them again. What can I talk about now? - Well, anything. - Oh, my God! - You have to talk about what you've experienced and what you haven't written about. - But I can't! - Do it again. - I can't, I can't! - she screamed in despair. Well, of course you can't, you have no legs. And I don't want to! Well, in that case, I'll carry you in my arms. But you've got a neck, and I'm not small. It's not small, it's light. Like a fluffy thing. Like a feather. Like your hand. And yet I will carry you in my arms! And how you will carry me! And even if you don't, I will. Yeah, how are you gonna carry me if you don't have legs? I'm not gonna carry you. I'll tell you where and when. -
